Election time is near and this is a plea to all members to vote. Cast your ballot for a better ANA. The ballot is your individual voice in our organization. You select the officers and the board of governors in this, the largest numismatic organization in the world. Yes, your ballot helps to keep this, the king of all hobbies, truly that! Your vote is very important.

First, make it a point to find out all you should know about each individual candidate. Study his past record, his record in state or other numismatic organizations. Elect those that will continue the ANA's present programs; elect those that will stand up for progress.

Here is a suggestion: Write directly to each candidate if you wish to know exactly how he feels about certain issues. Get his opinions on National Coin Week, the visual education program, the club program, The Numismatist, and any other subject on which you take an interest. Find out how he stands. Do not fail to ask the questions that you want answered.

After you are fully satisfied as to who are the best candidates, then, and only then, mark your ballot for each officer and all six governors. It is desirable to have the board members elected so that all sections of the country will be represented. There are many nominations this year from almost every part of the country.

I have appointed a committee to study this situation so that in the 1969 elections a way may be worked out to let all members vote on all governors, but with only one winner in each district. We may need some kind of a primary election. This would be held if more than one person is nominated from any one district. The size and location of the districts and the method of eliminating nominees or a plan of voting on all of them by all of our members, are touchy problems. This committee will find it hard to solve these difficulties to the satisfaction of all our members.

But this year we have a large number of candidates so it will be much more of a challenge for our members to select the right men. Please be sure to find out just what he stands for in the ANA before you cast your vote. I repeat, please do not vote in the dark. The next two years will be important ones for the ANA. Moving into our new debt free national headquarters on June 10, we will attract national attention. We should continue our program of membership services.

We should add more services in the next two years just as we have done in the past two. In a recent talk on the ANA and its services, I told about twenty-one services now available from the ANA. We have the facilities of our new building to be put to use. So we must have the active officers and board members. There should be no room for the kind that sit back and do nothing, thinking only of the honor of the office they hold.

Yes, now from our new location, where all programs and services are coordinated, we will serve all members of our association in an even better manner than in the past, thus attracting many new members.

Our national image will continue to grow. Our voice will continue to be heard in Washington. We will add new enthusiasts to the hobby, make it cleaner and even more enjoyable, fight against counterfeits, forgeries, and fakes, robberies and swindlers, and help with the educational advancement and the enjoyment of numismatics in one united organization.

Cast your ballot for a better ANA.

Clark, Gruber & Company

BY AGNES WRIGHT SPRING
STATE HISTORIAN OF COLORADO

COLORADO'S oldest, continuously operating banking firm, The First National Bank of Denver, stems from the great Gold Rush to the Rockies in 1859-1860. The bank owes its founding chiefly to two Clark brothers, Milton E. and Austin M., who with E. H. Gruber, established a banking and minting business in Denver City, in 1860, as a branch of their Leavenworth, Kansas bank. They carried on this business in Denver for five years when it became the basis of the first, nationally-chartered bank in Colorado.

Immediately upon the organization of the mother company in Leavenworth, Kansas in 1859, Clark, Gruber & Company announced that they were "dealing in exchange and gold dust throughout the Gold Mines." At that time the western boundary of Kansas extended to the Continental Divide, and included most of what is now eastern Colorado.

For years the presence of gold in the streams of the Rocky Mountains had been rumored by Indian trappers, explorers, missionaries and others returning to "the States." It was not, however, until in the autumn of 1857, that Fall Leaf, a Delaware Indian, displayed flakes of gold in eastern Kansas, which he said he had brought from the Rockies. He was returning home after having spent several months on a military expedition with Colonel E. V. Sumner, in the Pikes Peak region.

At the time of Fall Leaf's arrival in Leavenworth, Milton E. Clark and his brother, Austin N., originally from Ohio, were operating a large, successful wholesale business on Cherokee street. The materials which they handled varied from sugars, teas and fish, to corn, oats, nails and crockery. Such things all were in great demand on the western frontier at that time.

With direct river connection with St. Joseph, Missouri, Leavenworth was a natural gateway to the Great West. The little city, which had grown in less than five years from one house in 1854, to a population of 10,000, was just three miles down the "Big Muddy" from Fort Leavenworth. The fort was the principal supply depot for military stations as far west as Utah and New Mexico.

During the winter months various parties made plans to start for Pikes Peak as soon as spring opened. William Green Russell and his party of Georgia miners, who reached Leavenworth in March, 1858, on their way west to seek gold, claimed that a Cherokee party from Georgia in 1850, had discovered some gold in Ralston Creek, a tributary of Clear Creek, near present-day Arvada, Colorado.

After a short stay in Leavenworth, the Russell party pushed on westward up the Arkansas Valley towards the Rocky Mountains. Close on their heels went a party from Lawrence, Kansas. Other parties were making preparations to start the trek to the mountains.

Without means of communication other than word of mouth or letters carried back to "the States" by returning freighters, traders or prospectors and military men, it was August before reports from the "gold region of Kansas" began to trickle into Leavenworth. According to one report prospectors were obtaining from $50 to $60 a day, and finding pieces of gold varying from $50 to $250 in value!

Early in September there arrived in Leavenworth a man named Edmond King, who said he had gone out with the Lawrence party in May. Calling upon John M. Larimer, a banker at Delaware and Second Streets, King showed a goose quill filled with flakes of gold, which he claimed he had panned in Cherry Creek, a tributary of the South Platte in the Pikes Peak area.

The gold fever struck Leavenworth with a rush. Meetings were held on street corners, bankers and merchants, as well as loafers, were anxious to start for the new gold fields. The Leavenworth Times, of September 11, in speaking of Edmond King's arrival said: "Leavenworth was agog Thursday . . . 'Gold' was upon the lips of all, and 'Pike's Peak' acquired an immense deal of notoriety . . . Our city is the only point where gold seekers can obtain a proper outfit west of St. Louis . . . This is the grand starting and outfitting place . . . Leavenworth is nearer the gold field than any other prominent place."

General William Larimer, a former banker and railway president of Pittsburgh, Pa., who had lost his fortune in the depression of 1854, and who now had interests in Leavenworth, immediately began to organize a party to start for the Pikes Peak mines. Eighty or more men volunteered to accompany him. But when the start was made early in October, his party comprised only a total of six.

Although by late autumn thousands of gold seekers, including many residents of Leavenworth, were westward bound or were making preparations to leave for the West in early spring, M. E. Clark & Company were not swept along by this first gold frenzy. Instead, the Clark brothers continued with their wholesaling business, which unquestionably was benefitting from the rush to the Rockies.

In January, 1859, General Larimer sent back to Leavenworth some samples of gold dust and a map of the new city of Denver, which he had founded. He reported things in Denver progressing, and stated that good reports were coming in every day from the mines on "Vaskay's Creek" (Vasquez' Fork, now called Clear Creek).

Not far from M. E. Clark & Company's wholesaling house were the principal headquarters of the mammoth company of Russell, Majors and Waddell, Government contractors and freighters. Their business operations throughout the western country reached annually into the millions of dollars. With freight trains constantly coming and going much first-hand information relative to the gold fields was accessible to M. E. Clark & Co.

In March, 1859, William H. Russell of Russell, Majors and Waddell, and John S. Jones completed plans for launching a transportation company, known as the Leavenworth and Pike's Peak Express. This was to be the first substantial, scheduled transportation facility into Denver City. The initial outlay was $300,000.

Coincident with the establishment of the Leavenworth and Pike's Peak Express, Milton E. and Austin M. Clark entered into a banking partnership with E. H. Gruber, a native of Hagerstown, Maryland. Mr. Gruber, at that time in the bank of Isett, Kerr & Co., of Leavenworth, had come to Leavenworth from St. Louis, where he had been employed as cashier for McClellan, Scruggs and Company from 1851-1857.

By early spring the rush to the Rockies was in full swing. In early April, some ten or twelve hundred persons were encamped along the banks of Cherry Creek and the South Platte River at Auraria and Denver City, where they impatiently waited for the snow to go out of the mountain gulches. They were restless and eager to be off on the search for "colors." They were the advance of an army stretching across the plains from the Missouri River to the foothills of the Rockies.

But while immigration poured into the mining country, it also poured out with almost equal rapidity. Hundreds of half-starved and sadly disillusioned "go-backers" struggled to make their way eastward to their homes. They believed the gold rush to be a "humbug."

Spirits were lifted, however, when on May 7, two coaches of the Leavenworth and Pike's Peak Express, which had covered some 687 miles from Leavenworth in nineteen days, reached Denver. Next, spirits soared when word came that on May 6, John H. Gregory, a Georgia miner, accompanied by some "Hoosier" boys, had made a real discovery of gold in what is now the Central City area. This proved to be one of the richest lodes ever found in Colorado, and became known as one of the richest in the world.

With thousands of prospectors combing the hills and gulches and many of them extracting their only means of livelihood from the sands of the streams or from the quartz lodes, gold dust soon became the chief medium of exchange. Clark, Gruber and Company, in Leavenworth, became heavy buyers of the raw gold, as well as taking a considerable amount of it in payment for commodities at M. E. Clark & Company's wholesaling house.

This gold had to be shipped to the United States Branch Mint at Philadelphia to be coined into money. It was an expensive proceeding, as the only means of transportation was by stagecoach. Clark, Gruber & Company had to pay 5 per cent of the value of the dust as an insurance against loss in transit, and another 5 per cent expressage. The dust was out of the company's hands anywhere from three weeks to three months. Often the cash that the company would have in transit would total nearly $300,000.

One day E. H. Gruber conceived the idea of coining the dust, and discussed with Milton E. Clark, who was a lawyer, the possibility of their company attempting such coinage. Mr. Clark looked up various authorities and gave as his opinion that there was no law in the United States which could be construed against the coining of money by individuals, provided the coin was made full weight. In addition, Mr. Gruber consulted two of the most prominent attorneys in Kansas Territory. They were of the same opinion as Mr. Clark.

Other businessmen were experiencing the same inconvenience as Clark, Gruber & Company in handling gold dust. For instance, a report from the Philadelphia mint to J. B. Doyle & Company of Denver in October 1859, showed a loss of more than one hundred dollars on a shipment of gulch gold, valued as it was taken at Doyle's Denver store at $1,009.00.

At this time, too, the miners were greatly disturbed over the fact that the merchants of Denver and Auraria had set a lower value on gulch gold than they had been paying. Mass meetings of protest were held in Russell's Gulch, and by the miners of Mountain City and the Gregory Diggings. At the last named meeting on October 29, a resolution was passed which said in part: "We believe, and are well assured in our belief, that certain speculators in Denver and Auraria, have sent some of the poorest specimens of retorted gold mixed with quartz to the mint to be coined, which they could by any possibility obtain for the purpose of swindling mountain men and miners . . ."

Unquestionably the time was ripe for the setting up of a sound banking business, in the new mining country, to take care of the growing financial community that was seven hundred miles from its seat of government in eastern Kansas.

Plans for the establishment of their new branch bank and coinage department in Denver evidently were closely guarded by Clark, Gruber & Company until the time came for actually going into action. Nothing in the local press forecast such a business, until on April 4, the Rocky Mountain News announced the arrival on March 30, of L. L. Todd, who had come to make preparations for the establishment of an Assay and Coinage Office. Said the News: "He informs us that their machinery is all in readiness to ship from Leavenworth, about the 10th inst."

Heavy rains and high water delayed the proposed shipment somewhat. On April 20, the Daily Times (Leavenworth) printed the following:

Important Enterprise

Messrs. Clark, Gruber & Co., bankers of this city, last evening sent out to the mining region the entire machinery requisite for an assay office and mint for the coinage of eagles, double, half and quarter eagles. The apparatus is very complete and will be used in connection with the branch of their banking house, which these gentlemen are about establishing in Denver. A splendid safe and other appurtenances for the transaction of the latter department of the business was also forwarded at the same time. The whole goes out in charge of M. E. Clark, Esq., the senior member of the firm.

This is a project of no little consequence to the inhabitants of the gold country and it is fortunate for them that it has been undertaken by a firm whose standing is as high as that of Clark, Gruber & Company. We trust the enterprise will be entirely successful.

For some time Clark, Gruber & Company had been buying up gold dust, for which they issued bills of Exchange on the East. So large were their operations, a writer for the St. Louis Democrat called attention to the fact that because of the company's heavy buying only a limited amount of dust was then reaching St. Louis. "They will," the writer said, "refine all obtainable gold and run it into slugs and bars of convenient size, with their relative values stamped on them. They will thereby create a system of exchange somewhat similar to that used in the earlier days of California."

During July, Clark, Gruber & Company were constantly in the limelight. Each issue of the News carried a progress report. On July 4, the Editor wrote: "Clark, Gruber & Co's banking house and assay office is receiving the inside finish. Their engine is set up and in a few days they will begin the manufacture of the much prized 'American Eagles'." A week later he announced: "Clark, Gruber & Co's Assay office and coinage machinery is all ready for operation. We have seen specimens of their coin in copper, and learn that they have begun coining gold, but have seen none."

Editor West reported: "A specimen of their $10 pieces which we have seen, is exceedingly neat and tasty. Upon the obverse it exhibits the eagle of the government coin, with the words 'Clark, Gruber & Co., 1860.' The reverse bears a view of Pikes Peak, natural as life, and twice as sharp, with the inscription of 'Pikes Peak Gold. Denver. Ten D.' . . . We are gratified that this enterprise so important to the interest of our people, is in the hands of honorable gentlemen who will do a legitimate business and deal liberally and justly."

According to the Rocky Mountain

Herald, Denver, of August 11, Clark, Gruber & Company's Banking house and Assay office "is now in full blast. They are as will be seen by their advertisement, in connection with various eastern banks, on which drafts can be had at all times, and are much easier to transmit than coin, although they have an abundance of Rocky Mountain coin ready to exchange for dust if preferred. They are taking in a large amount of dust to convert into coin, and it is quite a sight to behold the bars of gold piled upon their table, worth about $1,000 each."

By August 25, Clark, Gruber & Company were said to be receiving about two thousand dollars in dust daily. Their advertisement in Sutherland's Leavenworth City Directory at this time showed them operating as Bankers in Leavenworth, Kansas and Denver City, and dealers in Exchange, Bullion, Gold Dust, Uncurrent Money, Land Warrants and Foreign Exchange on All Parts of Europe. References included ten banks from St. Louis to New York City.

During the week ending August 28, the company melted and coined about $18,000 in $10, $5 and $2.50 pieces. As specimens of coinage these pieces were said to have been far superior to any of the private mint drops issued in San Francisco, and nearly as perfect as the regular U. S. mint issues. According to the News the faces of the $5's and $2.50's were a good imitation of the government coinage—the head of the Goddess of Liberty, surrounded with thirteen stars had the firm name of "Clark & Co." on the head tiara. The reverse of the coin was "occupied" by "our noble bird" encircled by the words, "Pike's Peak Gold, Denver, 2½ D." The fineness of the coin was 828½, and the excess of weight over U. S. coin was twenty-three grains in a ten dollar piece. The value in gold was the same as government coin of like denomination, with an additional value in silver alloy equal to nearly one per cent. By deducting the cost of coining at the United States mint, about one-half per cent, the actual worth of the "Clark & Co's." coin was one-half per cent more than any other coinage.

The capacity of the machinery for coining was as follows: At ten hours per day at slowest speed, for

Coins and Currency

New dies were used by Clark, Gruber & Company for coinage in 1861. All four denominations of coins for this year followed closely the general pattern of those of the United States. The 1860 coins had been almost pure gold, containing very little alloy. These, however, had proved to be so soft that they abraded rather rapidly. It was therefore decided to use more alloy in the 1861 coinage.

A report of the Mint at Philadelphia in July, 1861, showed the coins of Clark, Gruber & Company to be from 815 to 838 thousands, with a weight "greater than in corresponding pieces of the national coinage in order to make up for the deficiency of fineness. On the average," reported the Mint, "the pieces are found to be of professed value, or slightly over."

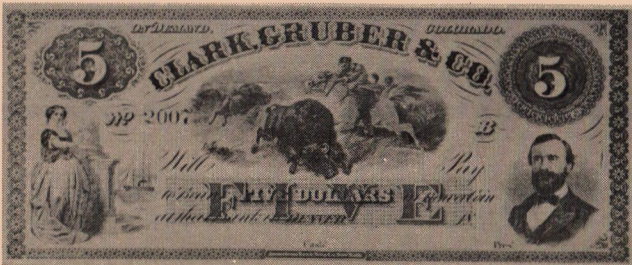

Clark, Gruber & Company issued steel-engraved demand notes. One, of the denomination of $5, had on the lower right hand corner a likeness of Governor Gilpin and on the left hand lower corner, the figure of a woman and the word "Union." In the summer of 1861, ones, twos and threes also were scheduled to be issued. This currency was payable in coinage at the Denver banking house of the company.

According to Historian Jerome Smiley, these notes "readily passed current and were redeemed in money that, toward the close of the firm's minting operations was at a premium." In 1862 the notes commanded a premium in United States currency, thus the rather extraordinary circumstance existed of paper promises to pay issued by three private citizens being of greater value than the paper promises issued by the Nation.

These coinage operations, Smiley felt, "were of immense benefit to the general banking business of the firm and gave it many advantages over competitors

On August 3, 1861, the Rocky Mountain News carried this item: "Paper Money — We have seen a beautifully engraved banknote of the denomination of $5, gotten up for Clark, Gruber & Company of this city. . . . The bill we saw has on the lower right hand corner an admirable likeness of Gov. Gilpin, which of itself ought to give currency to the issue."

This issue of One Dollar was redeemable only in sums of Five Dollars.

without a minting annex. An enormous and profitable business was transacted, and in all its operations the firm's honor and integrity were never questioned."

After the Territorial government of Colorado had been organized and was functioning, there was general public discussion as to the propriety, if not the legality, of this coinage within the shadow of the new government.

Clark, Gruber and Company were not the only firm issuing coins and currency at this time. On June 27, the News announced that Parsons & Co., of Hamilton (South Park), were preparing to begin the coinage of gold at that place. They planned to issue quarter and half eagles. Soon afterwards C. A. Cook & Co., Auction and Commission merchants, issued so-called "shin plasters" worth 20¢ and 50¢ in trade. In mid-August, a new coin of the denomination of five dollars, issued by J. J. Conway & Company, of Georgia Gulch, was attracting much attention.

In the meantime the first Territorial Convention of the Republican party was held at Golden on July 2, which passed a resolution declaring the necessity for a public mint in Colorado, and pledging to help to procure it. Clark, Gruber & Company heartily favored the proposition, and began to work towards that end.

Mr. Gruber evidently had been very busy during his stay in Denver, and when the C.O.C. & P.P. Express coach pulled out for the States on August 31, he was a passenger. He carried with him two letters of considerable importance. One was a letter of introduction from Territorial Secretary Lewis Ledyard Weld to the Hon. Salmon P. Chase, Secretary of the Treasury of the United States. The other letter was from Governor William Gilpin to Secretary Chase.

In the letter of introduction, Secretary Weld explained that E. H. Gruber, Esq., of the Banking House of Clark, Gruber & Co., of Denver and of Leavenworth, Kansas, "long and favorably known to the country," was in Washington on a mission of great importance. He urged Secretary Chase to give careful attention to the proposition.

The important business which Mr. Gruber pursued was that of endeavoring to interest the United States Government in the importance of establishing a Branch Mint in Denver, and of purchasing the apparatus and machinery then owned by Clark, Gruber & Company.

A fellow passenger on the outbound coach leaving Denver was the Hon. H. P. Bennet, recently elected Colorado's Representative in Congress. Both Mr. Bennet and Mr. Gruber worked earnestly in Washington to enlist the interest of the Secretary of the Treasury

Chase and others in the proposed mint matter.

They found that the next step was to create a local demand in Colorado for a government mint. This was quickly accomplished through the passage of a Joint Memorial of the Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Colorado, which was approved by Governor Gilpin on November 4, 1861. It was forwarded to Washington.

There was considerable interest in the proposed United States Mint. Editorial articles appeared in local newspapers emphasizing the necessity for such an institution. Pleasure was expressed when word came that Congressman Bennet had prepared a bill providing for an Assay Office or Branch Mint in Denver, which had been approved by the Secretary of the Treasury. One of the Clark brothers was reported to be in Washington at that time.

In the report made by Secretary Chase to the President, which was transmitted to Congress, he stated that he had been assured by the Attorney-General that no law had been violated by Clark, Gruber & Company in producing coins, but recommended that the existing coinage laws be so amended as to prohibit private coinage in the United States. He also recommended that a branch mint be established at Denver, and that authority be given for the purchase of the property of Clark, Gruber & Co., for conversion into a branch mint of the United States.

Passage of the act providing for a Branch Mint was not an easy accomplishment, as there were many opponents who felt that the Government with its depleted treasury, due to war conditions, should not attempt such a new venture. Nevada was eager for a mint, and had many political friends. Congressman Bennet worked very hard for the bill. Introduced on December 19, 1861, it at last became effective on April 21, 1862, when signed by President Lincoln.

This, however, was the beginning of a long drawnout transaction. An appropriation was made of $75,000 for establishing the government mint. The price asked by Clark, Gruber & Co., for their building and minting machinery was $25,000.

On June 14, Salmon P. Chase appointed George W. Brown as a Special Agent of the Treasury Department, to examine and report upon the expediency of purchasing or leasing the Private Mint of Messrs. Clark, Gruber & Company, at Denver. He was to act in conjunction with Samuel E. Browne, U. S. District Attorney, and Samuel H. Elbert, Secretary of Colorado Territory. Dr. Oscar D. Munson, Assayer of the Mint in San Francisco, was ordered to report to Denver to assist Mr. Browne in estimating the value of the property involved. Dr. Munson also was to estimate the cost of new machinery and materials for expansion of the mint.

At a meeting held in Denver on August 29, Mr. A. M. Clark announced that satisfactory arrangements had been made with the Mint Commissioners for the sale of the mint and building to the United States. "The terms of the proposed sale," he said, "are of such a character as to be fair for all parties concerned."

In late October, Dr. O. D. Munson was appointed U. S. Assayer for the Denver Mint and took "charge of the assaying and melting departments of Clark, Gruber & Company, and was ready to melt, assay and put into bars whatever gold should be offered until the U. S. Mint went into operation."

After deeding its coinage plant over to the Government, Clark, Gruber & Company made a report on January 1, 1863 to the mother company at Leavenworth, Kansas, relative to its minting work. Preceding the report the Editor of the Weekly Commonwealth and Republican, on January 8, published the following comments:

Messrs Clark, Gruber & Co., have shown an indomitable energy and perseverance in the conduct of their establishment. They have met and overcome obstacle after obstacle, opposition after opposition, and have entirely succeeded in their enterprise. They have done more than any others have done to prove to the world the richness of our mining districts and the excellence of the gold produced. They have by the circulation of their coin which from the first has been quoted at par with U. S. coins of the same ostensible value, extended widely over this country and Europe the knowledge of Colorado, and finally to Col. A. M. Clark, of this firm, we are largely indebted for the passage of the bill which gives us a branch mint in Colorado. The firm still remains as the agents of the United States Government until the officers appointed to conduct the operations of the mint shall arrive....

In a full report, the company sketched the history of their Denver minting and coinage business, stating that the total coinage had been $594,305.00, and that from July 16, 1860 to Jan. 1, 1863 they had purchased $1,462,647.75 in gold. They concluded by saying that they had on special deposit and had shipped for other parties to the mint at Philadelphia large amounts not included in the report.

Clark, Gruber & Company began business in Denver at G and McGaa Streets in 1860. In the spring of 1863, after the Government took possession of the company's banking and minting building, Clark, Gruber & Company moved to F Street, where they continued their banking business. In those quarters the Clark Brothers carried on the business as Clark & Co., after E. H. Gruber withdrew from the company in March, 1864. Clark & Company maintained the same stability and dependableness that the mother company had established. And in that same location on F Street, they helped to launch the First National Bank of Denver, which began business on May 10, 1865. Today, the former Clark, Gruber & Company, is still a landmark on the Colorado skyline, part of one more story out of the numismatic west.

Clark, Gruber & Company today is the First National Bank of Denver. A complete collection of Pikes Peak gold coins and early minting equipment are on display in the bank's mezzanine.

COLORADO CATTLEMEN'S CENTENNIAL

A number of new medals of the great West have been issued lately, with the centennial of the Union Pacific, the Nebraska centennial and now the hundredth anniversary of the Colorado Cattlemen's Association. Their medal, struck by Medallion Art Company, has been serially issued in silver and in bronze, 36 mm in diameter. The sculptor was Patrick Whitaker of New York and symbolizes a century of progress in the livestock industry. Available to collectors at cooperating banks throughout the state of Colorado for $1.00 for the bronze; the silver will be available at a later date. Further information can be obtained from the Colorado Cattlemen's Association, 4675 Lafayette St., Denver, Colorado.

A Token Tale of Colorado Springs

BY VIRGINIA CULVER, ANA 39347

This month our American Numismatic Association dedicates its first permanent home and headquarters in Colorado Springs, Colorado. This event heralds a dream of seventy-five years since our founding. Twenty years before our existence, in 1871, General William J. Palmer had a dream about founding a city nestled in the shadow of Pikes Peak. His career as a Union general had sent him all over the South, but his dreams of exploration deposited him in Colorado. The excitement of the gold strikes in the Cherry Creek region in the 1860s soon lost its luster because of the high cost of transporting the ore. Lady Luck gave the region another chance — the discovery of silver in the Leadville area in the late 1870s. Colorado Springs was now ready for the boom. General Palmer had built his Denver and Rio Grande Railway and there was transportation for the ore. In the 1880s there was another railroad line, the Colorado Midland, which helped Colorado Springs continue its growth. The city could proudly boast of Colorado College founded by Congregationalists among many other cultural achievements.

The Panic of 1893 could have been most destructive to Colorado Springs. Colorado was leading every state in the production of silver from its rich mines and now the silver standard was to be changed to gold. Again the region was given another chance — the discovery of gold in Cripple Creek just twenty-five miles southwest of Colorado Springs. So the city grew and developed and prospered.

The token, ignored by many collectors, has always played a determinative part in our American heritage. We can learn much from any nation's coinage, but it is the token which gives us greater insight into the social and economic customs of the people. Every significant economic period in our country's history has been marked by the issuance of tokens. Tokens were used in our country even before we had our own coinage. Historically as well as numismatically, tokens tell a tale, and in pleasure, they far surpass a date and a mint mark.

Colorado has given the numismatic fraternity much to whet the collecting appetite. The earliest items are probably the Denver City Assay tokens in denominations of $5 and $20 of 1860. They preceded by a few months the patterns and gold coins of Clark, Gruber and Company. The establishment of a private mint connected with a bank in Denver became a necessity in the 1860s because of the high cost of transportation and the time involved in getting the ore to some distant point. The John Parsons Company produced gold ingots from the Tarryall Mines in 1861 in addition to the undated 2½ and 5 dollar gold coins. From Georgia Gulch the J. J. Conway Company operated and produced 2½, 5, and 10 dollar gold pieces. There is much intrigue connected with the Leshor or Referendum Dollars of Colorado. One, specifically, was distributed in Colorado Springs by L. C. Goodspeed, a jeweler located then at 26 Pikes Peak Avenue.

The earliest token items of Coloradiana were most probably these Denver City Assay Office tokens. Illustrated here are the obverse and reverse sides of the $5 denominations.

This one is of great rarity as only four specimens are known to exist. The Pedley-Ryan Dollars of 1933, initiated to create demand for silver, are numismatically important and again, a rare variety is attributed to Colorado Springs. Bertram Robbins and his son operated a clothing store and had obtained 300 of the silver discs at bullion value. One Saturday morning Bertram Robbins, Jr. sat in the front display window of the store and with a punch-type die stamped "ROBBINS ON THE CORNER" on the Pedley-Ryan discs. With each purchase in the store, the customer could buy one of the discs for $1. This advertising gimmick was so successful that the entire supply was depleted in one day. The Colorado "Rush to the Rockies" Centennial in 1959 was recorded in metallic history and the highlight of the year was the first commencement and official dedication of the United States Air Force Academy located just outside Colorado Springs.

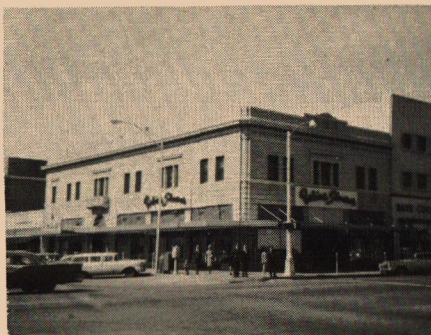

The last years of life of the Pikes Peak Club were spent above the Colorado Springs National Bank. This shows the building as it appears today.

The trade tokens of the Pikes Peak Club located in Colorado Springs from 1896 until 1929 will never attain the numismatic stature of the foregoing items. However they do remain to remind us of by-gone days of that city. Our country was alive with political excitement in 1896 and the very exclusive Pikes Peak Club was an ideal place for the who's who of Colorado Springs to gather for a short libation, perhaps a game of bar dice, and accompanying discussions which naturally follow when a group of businessmen convene.

The club was located upstairs at 104 North Tejon Street for the majority of its years in existence. In 1920, that building was purchased by Perkins Sherer and after being remodeled, became the location of the Perkins Sherer department store which stands there today. By necessity the club was moved diagonally across the street above the Colorado Springs National Bank. It was at this location for the last nine years of its life.

We find many influential and substantial men of Colorado Springs associated with the Pikes Peak Club. In 1900 the president was E. W. Giddings, Jr., who owned a department store for many years that has since been bought out by May D F Co. H. A. Wagner, the treasurer from 1901 to 1904 was at one time mayor of Colorado Springs. F. A. Perkins, the president in 1911 was associated with the Perkins Sherer Store which operates today. D. Y. Butcher, the secretary from 1910 until 1912, was a well-known wholesale druggist in the

The club spent the majority of its years in existence in this building. In 1920, the building was purchased by Perkins Sherer and the club found it necessary to move across the street.

The regular Pikes Peak Club tokens share a common obverse, naming the club, and had the three different values on the reverse. To belong to the club one had to be affluent and well known in city affairs.

area. The president in 1912, M. H. Wilbur, was the owner of Wilburs Department Store which was in operation until just a few years ago. The last listing in the city directory is Thomas H. Holton, secretary, who had held that position in the club for the past sixteen years. Although history records that which time has a way of erasing, there is always more that we would like to know. So it is with these Pikes Peak tokens. A few residents of Colorado Springs can remember the sign of the Pikes Peak Club, but none of the particulars about it. To belong to the club, one had to be affluent and well-known in the civic, cultural, and business affairs of the city; or one did not belong.

A set of Pikes Peak Club tokens consists of four, all struck in aluminum. The 27mm size is "Good for 15¢ in trade." A 24mm size is "Good for 10¢ in trade." "Good for 5¢ in trade" is also 24mm. The fourth token, a variation of the 10¢ token in size and denomination is "Good for One 10¢ Cigar." My special thanks to Len Campbell of Colorado Springs, ANA member, who brought these tokens to my attention and supplied some of the pertinent information on them. When he secured a small handful of them several months ago, he could find no one who had ever seen them before, much less had ever heard of the Pikes Peak Club of Colorado Springs. There is no name, nor even initials, to help us supply data on the manufacturer. Tokens of this type were in vogue in the 10s and 20s of this century so we can only guess that this was the time of their use. From the small handful found (less than 50) only two were found in the plain 10¢ variety.

Many more will probably be found now. Regardless of the total issue, the availability to collectors, or the trade value today, these aluminum tokens of the Pikes Peak Club will always tell a tale of a by-gone era in Colorado Springs, Colorado — location of the permanent home and headquarters of the American Numismatic Association.

Did You Know?

Each year the nations of the world mint almost two and a half billion coins which contain nickel in amounts varying from one to 100 per cent.

Because of nickel's toughness and high melting point, coins made of this metal are very difficult to counterfeit.

Numismatic Vignettes

■ Have you ever seen a U. S. 3-cent coin dated 1943? No, but it was authorized, along with the 1943 steel cent, by the Act of December 18, 1942. This act's authorization did not expire until December 31, 1946, even though the steel cent was issued in 1943 only.

■ Special to collectors of U. S. paper money! A report received from the Treasury Dept. several months ago contained the following statement: "$142,000 U. S. Notes (old series), $2,450,000 Federal Reserve Notes (prior to Series of 1928), $63,000 Federal Reserve Bank Notes (old series), $420,000 National Bank Notes (old series), $8,950,000 gold certificates (prior to Series of 1934), $280,000 silver certificates (issued before 7/1/29), and $31,000 Treasury Notes of 1890 [were] determined on May 26, 1966, pursuant to the Old Series Currency Adjustment Act, approved June 30, 1961, to have been destroyed or irretrievably lost and so will never be presented for redemption." Wonder how many of these are in collectors' hands!

■ Everyone needs something against which to measure his worth. Be sure the coin you choose as your standard is of good metal; and above all that it is genuine — not a counterfeit.

■ We hear much about the need for adequate communication between individuals, groups and peoples. How often do we remember that good communication depends upon listening and reading, as well as upon talking and writing?

■ "They are pretty, but of what practical value are die proofs (of bank note vignettes and portraits)?" There aren't many good answers to that question but one is illustrated here. The top picture is of the center of a $3 note of the Bull's Head Bank founded in 1854 in New York City. I don't have a die proof of this engraving but the lower picture is from a proof $5 note of another Bull's Head Bank. Comparison of the two engravings should leave no doubt in anyone's mind that the $3 note is a counterfeit, of which there are further indications (not as convincing) on other parts of the note. This is just one of many cases that could be cited in which a die proof banishes doubt as to whether a note is genuine or counterfeit. Incidentally, every $3 Bull's Head Bank (N. Y.) note I've seen is a counterfeit. — GLENN S.

Numismatic Reminiscences from the "Shining Mountains"

BY DR. PHILIP W. WHITELEY, LM 554

The Rocky Mountains were called the Shining Mountains by the early travelers⁽¹⁾ because of the crystal stones of an amazing size, with which they were covered and which, when the sun shines full upon them, sparkle so as to be seen for a great distance. These people supposed that the mountains contained minerals, precious stones and gold and silver.

The Spaniards carved their way into the interior of the South and West and founded their cities a thousand miles inland long before the first Anglo-Saxon came to the Atlantic seaboard.

A full century before the California Argonauts crossed the continent, Spaniards and Frenchmen were contesting Colorado soil, El Cuartelejo (the Apache stronghold), which was located on Adobe Creek, a tributary of the Arkansas River.

The westward penetration of the United States traders among the Plains Indians destroyed the alliances which an enlightened Spanish policy had built among the tribes.

The Fur Gatherer and Traders

The fur trader and trapper first explored and established the routes of travel which are now the avenues of commerce. At strategic Colorado points were trading posts, called forts: St. Vrain, Lupton, Vasquez and Jackson on the South Platte⁽²⁾. Fort Davy Crockett, in Brown's Hole, became the rendezvous of the fur trappers described by Wizlizenus, Farnum, Fremont and Sage. Here Kit Carson, Joe Meek and Jim Bridger hunted and trapped.

Bent's Fort on the Arkansas was the finest and largest fur-trading post. This old fort outlasted the beaver era by a decade because its great wagon trains carried buffalo hides and silver bullion and moved cavallados of Spanish mules and horses eastward.

Bent and St. Vrain, Kit Carson, Maxwell Hatcher, Sublette, Louis Vasquez, Old Bill Williams, Fitzpatrick, Uncle Dick Wooton, Jim Balser and Jim Beckworth were among the knights in buckskin who passed through Fort Bent's iron-shod door. Here General Kearney outfitted his army for the conquest of the Southwest.

Barter was the method of exchange. Tokens, used extensively at Fort Laramie, Wyoming Territory, were not used in the Colorado fur trade. Of the several articles of trade such as powder, lead, tobacco, alcohol, muskets, knives, hatchets, hatchet-tomahawks, awls, blankets, mirrors, hawk bells, paints and beads, the latter were the most intimately associated with every day life, customs, habits and exploits of the early Americans.

Fortunately an inventory of trade goods taken at Fort Jackson (Weld County, Colorado) was preserved. On

2. On the South Platte River between present Denver and Greeley, a string of four adobe trading posts were established in the late 1830s. Fort Lupton, a mile north of the present town of this name was built by Lancaster P. Lupton in 1836. About 6 miles farther north Fort Jackson was built and maintained for a short time. One mile south of Platteville stood Fort Vasquez, built by Louis Vasquez and Andrew Sublette in 1837. Fort St. Vrain, owned by the Bent and St. Vrain Co., was located on the east banks of the Platte about a mile north of the mouth of St. Vrain Creek.

December 2, 1837, part of these were sent down the Arkansas River by James Robertson for fur trade with the Indians during the winter of 1838. At this time the principal trade was in buffalo robes (over 90%) and "Taos Lightnin" was employed to extract the hides and skins.

The discovery of gold by the prospecting parties of 1858 occurred when they moved up the South Platte, eight miles above the mouth of Cherry Creek, to Dry Creek (presently Englewood, Colorado). Richardson described the miners as an uncontrollable eruption — a great river of human life rolling toward the setting sun. Every great thoroughfare was white with wagons. At the end of the journey was Denver

City with its strange medley of society: Mexicans, Indians, half-breeds, speculators, gamblers, desperadoes, broken-down politicians and some honest men.

When the news of discovery of gold at Gregory Gulch reached Denver City traders locked up their stores; bar keepers disappeared with their bottles of whiskey; the few mechanics abandoned their work; the county judge and sheriff, lawyers and doctors joined in the general rush.

Horace Greeley caught the gold contagion at Gregory Point and admonished the miners to avoid the peculiar temptations of drinking and gaming. His famous slogan "Go West young man, go West," was an outgrowth of the trip.

C. A. Cook & Co. bills

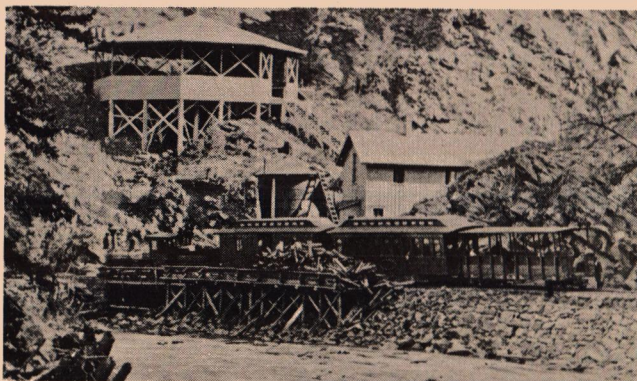

Gold dust and nuggets were the chief medium of exchange, however, this did not satisfy the miners for long, so the famous gold coins of Clark, Gruber & Co. were minted in Denver, Colorado Territory. This company also issued bills payable in gold coin. Several other firms, especially the banking house, C. A. Cook & Co., issued small bills, all of which greatly enhanced exchange.

Despite the concoction of humanity in Denver City the trend was rapid toward a cultivated society. The wildcat currency which came to Colorado from

3. The beads were strung on fine thread, looped and tied in masses. The terms used in the invoice and inventory were standardized and in use among the fur companies when ordering new supplies.

The term "mass" of beads had been used for a long time in the fur trade. The French mass contained 1,000 beads; the Austrian mass, 1,200 beads; and the Italian mass an indefinite number.

neighboring states was partially accepted then rejected when U. S. currency began to appear.

After Gregory Gulch new discoveries were made at Twelve Mile Diggings, Left Hand Creek, Gold Hill, Gold Dirt, Russell Gulch and Nevada Gulch. Within three years placers and gulches were succeeded by mines in hardrock and Spanish arastas.

Central City boomed in 1865. Houses were held up on dizzy heights by stilts. Others burrowed into the stones of hills, with gold lodes in the back yard. Farther away in the mountains were mine dumps by the thousands. In 1867 with improved machinery and smelting the great lodes of Central poured forth a golden flood.

Ore haulers' mine and mill and many saloon tokens were in common usage in Central City and the surrounding camps. These early tokens have been found in the ground occupied by the saloons in the "ghost" towns and along the creeks. The miners would lose them while jumping across the streams. Subsequently they were dug up or dredged out of the ground. A few tokens issued to the wood-haulers have been discovered. These bear the initials C.C.R.R. (Colorado Central Railroad) and were issued to wood-haulers supplying the wood burning engines.

Several banking houses appeared in Central City and for many years did a prosperous business. Joseph Addison Thatcher, called the "boom town banker" was president of the First National Bank of Central City. He was an astute business man and an able banker. Thatcher prepared for his cashier a minute guide for the operation of his bank while visiting Europe:

Wood Tokens

Farmers and woodmen hauled cord wood to a point near the tracks and secured tokens for the amount of wood supplied. The tokens came in 1, ½, ¼ and possibly ⅛ cords. The initials designated the railroad. Those with numbers only were used on the railroad sections. The farmers were paid in tokens, e.g., 2 ½, 2 1-cord and 1 ½ cord. These were redeemed later.

On South Park the mushroom towns of Montgomery, Buckskin Joe, Mosquito, Fairplay, Tarryall and Hamilton sprang into feverish activity. The Conway and Parson coins appeared after the Clark, Gruber & Co. coinage.

The Silver Era

Other districts of the great silver era followed the initial gold work. The discovery of silver touched off an era of elegance and turmoil in Colorado history. Cy Warman, editor of the "Creede Candle," wrote the most widely quoted verse ever penned by a Colorado author:

"Here meek and wild eyed burros,
On mineral mountains feed.
It's day all day in the day-time
And there is no night in Creede."

These lines reflect the quintessence of all that was flamboyant, glamorous, yet virile during that astounding silver era in Colorado mining history.

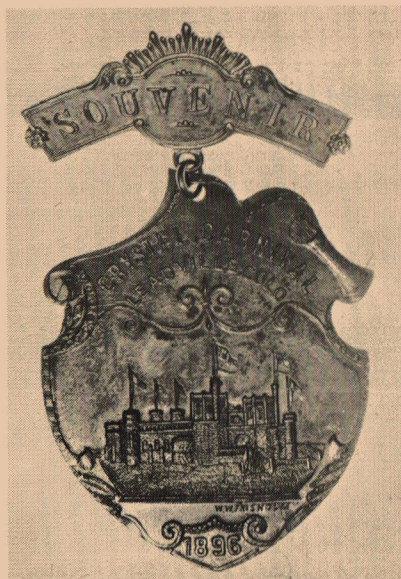

"All that glitters is not gold." Carbonate of lead was found to carry silver. Silver produced Leadville, termed by Will Erwin "an epic of the West," dazzling the world with its ostentatious wealth and extravagant splendor. It gave birth to the superlative romance in western mining history — the strange story of H. A. W. Tabor and his silver queen — Baby Doe. Tabor furnished Rische and Hook with a grubstake costing seventeen dollars. The Little Pittsburgh alone made Tabor $2,500,000.

Carlyle Chandler Davis walked upon a floor tiled with double gold eagles and attended a banquet at which $80,000,000 of capital was represented.

One man complained that he could not find any place to sleep and that he could not get near enough to a faro table to put his chips down. In 6 months Leadville reached 60,000 population. Over the piano in a dancing saloon was the sign "Please do not shoot the pianist. He is doing his best."

Oscar Wilde while descending a mine in a rickety bucket was served supper, "the first course whiskey, the second whiskey and the third whiskey." Like Nevada, Colorado had many silver kings. Johnny Brown, whose wife Mollie accidentally burned $200,000.00 in the stove one chilly night, complained after his wife built her high-toned house in Denver, that up in Leadville he cooked corned beef and cabbage for his cronies in the house and went to the toilet outdoors. In Denver you had to go to the toilet in the house and cook the corned beef and cabbage in the yard.

Work was begun November 1, 1895, on the Leadville Ice Palace. Ice was obtained from the lakes of the Leadville Water Company (1½ miles distance). Some ice was shipped in by the train-load from Palmer Lake, via the D&RG R.R., 5,000 tons of ice were used in the walls and towers. 10,000 yards of canvas was required to cover the entire south wall. The castle was built in Norman style. It was 1/12 mile long and was located on Capital Hill, on the western edge of the city, between 7th and 8th streets. It covered a solid block. There was skating and dancing. Exhibits were frozen in blocks of ice. The palace lasted until the first of July, 1896.

The Cripple Creek Race

Cripple Creek, discovered in 1878 by Bob Wornack, produced another mining revival in Colorado. At the height of gold production Bryan was advocating his 16 to 1 ratio in his political campaigns. The silver tongued orator was admired by Joseph Leshner who attempted to promote the use of silver as a medium of exchange by the issuance of his Referendum pieces or Leshner dollars.

Many were the tokens issued in the mining camp, outstanding of which was the Grand Donkey Derby token.

Donkey Race token

The Cripple Creek Two Mile Club staged the first Grand Donkey Derby over a seven mile course along the Range View road between the historic mining towns of Victor and Cripple Creek in August, 1931.

The starting point was the Gold Bowl in Victor, thence to Winfield, and then down Tenderfoot Hill to the finish line in Cripple Creek.

Tokens were issued as advertising for the affair and dropped from an airplane. Merchants at Cripple Creek redeemed the tokens for $2.50 in gold when presented at their stores.

Ore-haulers' Mine and Mill Tokens

These tokens or chips were used to keep check of the number of wagon loads of ore tailings (concentrates) hauled from the mine to the mill or from the mill to the railroad.

Ore-hauler at Cripple Creek

The independent ore-haulers and contractors would pick up a load at the mill or mine and would receive a chip or token either at the start or destination of the haul. This chip was turned in to the office and payment was made according to the number of trips made and distance traveled. Ore was measured rather than weighed, a "cord," running in Gilpin County, according to the type of ore weighed from less than seven to more than ten tons.

Ore wagons in Gilpin County were in three classes: the "quarter cord" being a light type of wagon with light wheels; the "third cord" being of heavier construction and a larger capacity with heavy wheels and axles; the "half cord" was rather a huge affair with wheels over fifty inches in diameter and with high sideboards. The skinner sat about eight feet up in the air.

Huge skids and chains made in the blacksmith shops were used as "rough locks" to hold these heavily loaded wagons back on the steep grades down from the mines. Sometimes big logs were used in addition to the "rough-locks."

It is the important duty of The Numismatist to record and illustrate new coins. To accomplish this, members in the United States and abroad are invited to submit new issues to Ernst Kraus, Room 939 (include room number in address), 393 Seventh Ave., New York, N. Y. 10001. Coins will be photographed and returned as soon as possible, and a credit line will be given to anyone assisting.

China

This is the day of two Chinas—the communists' on the mainland and the nationalists' Republic of China occupying Taiwan or Formosa. Chiang Kai-Shek is one of two of the Big Five of WW II who still lives. Driven from the mainland following that war, he has maintained a free China from Taiwan. The following coin was issued to commemorate his 80th birthday.

2000 yuan, 1966. Gold. Obverse: head to left, Chinese legend around the lower portion, LONG LIFE TO CHIANG KAI-SHEK AT AGE OF 80—REPUBLIC OF CHINA 55TH YEAR, 10TH MONTH, 31ST DAY (October 31, 1966, Chiang's birthday). Reverse: two cranes in a field of flowers; value below; all within an ornamental border design.

Greece

The following coins were released for circulation in Greece on January 1, 1967.

Guyana is located on the north-east shoulder of the South American continent and is 83,000 square miles in area. It is notable for its mighty rivers, the most important being the Demarara, Berbice, Essequibo and Courantyne. The economy of the country has traditionally been based on the production of two agricultural crops, sugar and rice, and since World War II, on bauxite, the ore of aluminum.

Nepal

Collectors wishing to order coins direct from this mountain kingdom may do so but three things are requisite: — patience, a can opener and band-aids. In that order.

His majesty's ministry of finance mint in Kathmandu, Nepal offers collectors "proof sets" including commemorative coins, coronation sets, back-dated and current year sets. Here patience must be applied for after the collector writes to inquire what sets are available and at what price, he must wait almost one year for a reply. An alert collector might interject here and suggest airmail. This is via airmail, but if one were to stop here and glance at an atlas for a minute, he'd note the inaccessibility of the country and admit that part of the postal journey must be via yak back.

The price list varies from time to time, prices are not unreasonable but "proofs" are not proofs as collectors know them. Coins are packaged in cardboard holders, securely wrapped in moisture proof paper, sealed in a sheet of tin, the reason for the can opener and band-aids. It will take an additional year to receive these after your order has been placed but for the collector willing to try, write: His Majesty's Government, Ministry of Finance, Mint Department, Sundhara, Kathmandu, Nepal.

1 paisa, 1966/67. Aluminum. Obverse: Himalaya mountains surmounted by a trident, symbol of Lord Shiva, protector of the country. The "bowtie" on the stem of the trident is a "damaru" a drum used at religious ceremonies; to the left and the right of the trident are the moon and the sun; below the mountain the legend, in Devanagari, NEPAL, and the Samvat date, 2023; legend on the bottom, from left, SRI MAHENDRA VIRA VIKRAMA SAHA DEB (name and titles of ruler). Reverse: in the center, a "lali guras," a sort of rhododendron with red flowers in blossom, it is also considered the national flower; value below, 1 EKA PAISA; above, SRI BHAVANI. Plain edge.

The above coins are slightly reduced in size and weight from the earlier issues.

Peru

Commemorating the battle of May 2, 1866, when the Spanish fleet was defeated at the bombardment of Callao, the Lima Mint has struck the following silver commemorative coin. In addition to this coin, gold coins of 50 and 100 soles have been reported struck to commemorate the same event. Three thousand of each denomination have been made, but as yet, no description is available.

Tonga

The kingdom of Tonga, the Friendly Islands, is a wholly independent state within the framework of the British Commonwealth and associated with Great Britain through a series of treaties. Encompassing an ocean area of about 25,000 square miles in the southwest Pacific there are some 150 islands in the kingdom. Tonga made collector history a few years ago by producing a special issue of postage stamps to commemorate the first gold coinage of Polynesia. The round gold-foil stamps, reproducing the gold coin issues of Tonga, became popular with both stamp and coin collectors. It has since been widely copied by other small countries interested in producing revenue from the sale of stamps to collectors.

All the coins in this new decimal series were struck at the Royal Mint in London.

Uganda

This is a country about the size of Britain and it lies astride the equator in the heart of East Africa. It is entirely an inland country, its main town, Kampala, being almost 900 miles by rail from the coast. Surrounding it are: to the north, the Sudan; to the west, the Congo; to the south, the Kingdom of Burundi, the Republic of Ruanda and Tanganyika; and to the east, Kenya. Uganda gained its independence from Great Britain on October 9, 1962.

SCFC HONORS PIONEER WOMEN

The Societe Commemorative de Femmes Celebres, the society devoted to the commemoration of famous women, has delivered their medal honoring "Pioneer Women of America." This is the 7th in their bimonthly series for their 3220 members. It was designed and sculptured by Abram Belskie, a recipient of the ANS' J. Sanford Saltus medal and an academician of the American Academy of Design.

The Pikes Peak Medal – 1906

BY CLARK S. YOWELL, ANA 18131

The world famous Pikes Peak, sentinel on the borderline between the plains and the mountains, forms an imposing backdrop for the new home of the American Numismatic Association.

From its discovery by Zebulon Montgomery Pike, November 15, 1806, early explorers and fur traders, on their way along the eastern slopes of the Rockies, from the valley of the Arkansas to the South Platte, down through the years to today's visitors to the region have gazed with awe at this easternmost peak of the Rocky Mountain range.

Looking forward to the centennial of the discovery of Pikes Peak, the Pike Monument Association was formed in 1896. This group, working with Congressman-at-large Franklin E. Brooks, succeeded in introducing a bill in Washington calling for the striking of a medal in commemoration of the Southwest Expedition, headed by Pike, and the resultant discovery of Pikes Peak.

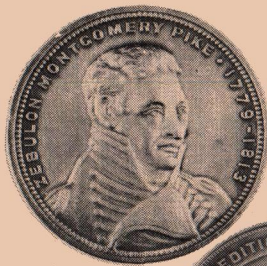

The bill called for the appropriation of $10,000 for preparation of the dies and the striking of the medals at the Denver mint, which was slated to go into operation during the centennial year 1906.

Inasmuch as the Denver mint was not equipped with medal presses it was necessary to delete from the bill a specified mint and, by calling for reimbursement for the actual cost of the medals, the bill was passed.

An order was placed with the Philadelphia mint on June 30, 1906, for 1,000 silver medals and 2,000 bronze. The order also requested 250 of the bronze pieces were to be gold plated and 100 each of the silver, bronze and gold plated medals were to be mounted on a blue and gold ribbon and attached to a pin bar bearing the word "COLORADO."

Following the filling of this order all future silver pieces were to be furnished with a French grey or oxidized finish. On August 21 an order went in for 3,000 each of the silver and bronze furnished with hanger or loops and fob straps. In all there were struck 6,500 bronze, 250 of which were gold plated, and 4,450 silver medals.

Also specified in the original order was the numbering of the first 25 of the bronze, silver and gold plated pieces mounted on ribbon and bar. At this time but two of the numbered medals have been reported.

During elaborate ceremonies in Colorado Springs starting September 23, approximately 6,750 of the Pike medals were sold and presented to visiting dignitaries. The remaining supply of medals were placed back in the mint boxes and stored in the basement of the First National Bank where they remained all but forgotten until the building was razed in 1955 to make way for a new structure.

At this time the remaining 4,200 pieces were turned over to the local Historical Society to be disposed of, the proceeds to be used in financing a sesquicentennial celebration. The Pikes Peak Coin Club worked with the Historical Society in disposing of the medals and more than $2,000 was thus contributed by the coin club through sales of the medals.

Of the remaining medals, at the instigation of Mayor William C. Henderson, presently ANA treasurer, 100 each of the bronze and silver were purchased from the Historical Society and mounted in 4x4-inch plastic holders appropriately stamped in gold "Presented by the City of Colorado Springs." Many of the nation's top military leaders as well as other visiting VIPs have been presented with these now famous "Pike Medals."

Along with the "official" medals offered for sale in 1906 appeared a privately struck medal differing considerably from the mint product in design. Newspaper articles of the day warned purchasers to beware of "unauthorized medals being palmed off on the uninformed." However today very few collections include the "unauthorized" version of the medal.

During the 1956 sale of the remaining medals considerable research was conducted both in Washington and at the Philadelphia mint and copies were secured of correspondence connected with the designing and striking of the medal. It was apparent from this material that the designing of the medal and the cutting of the dies was done by Charles E. Barber, chief engraver of the mint.

The above mentioned research material was later placed on file at the Pioneer Museum in Colorado Springs.

This paper token is a souvenir of the Universal Exposition of 1857 held in Paris. The token opens to reveal an extensive number of scenes of Paris. It is one of many hundreds of items now on display at the Chase Manhattan Bank Money Museum in connection with a new exhibit entitled "World's Fairs—From the Crystal Palace to Expo 67."

Notes & Queries

Panorama of World's Fairs Display at Chase Manhattan

Usually, people who want to predict the future resort to fortune tellers, crystal balls or horoscopes.

According to the Chase Manhattan Bank, however, one of the clearest reflections of the future has been found at world's fairs of the past century.

Evidence of how successful world's fairs have been in gazing into the unknown dimension of time is found in a new, major exhibit at the Chase Manhattan Bank Money Museum, 1254 Avenue of the Americas, New York City. The exhibit, entitled "World's Fairs—From the Crystal Palace to Expo 67," had its preview opening recently.

Highlighting the exhibit are numismatic items from the museum's collection and an array of valuable world's fair memorabilia from the collection of Lawrence G. Zimmerman, a New York architectural designer.

Coins, stamps, ceramics and souvenirs have been assembled to illustrate the world's fair's great impact on technology. A striking Currier and Ives lithograph and a medal of the famed Crystal Palace, the dominant structure of the London Crystal Palace Fair of 1851, gives visitors an opportunity to form mental images to compare with the U. S. Pavilion that will be opened at Expo 67. The pavilion will be a huge geodesic dome designed by Buckminster Fuller. Victorian taste in architecture was epitomized by the ornate and fanciful Crystal Palace, the first large structure to be built primarily of glass and steel.

The Paris Fair of 1900 and the Pan-Pacific Exposition of 1915, held in San Francisco, reflected the art nouveau period when architecture showed the growing influence of natural forms. To highlight the San Francisco exposition, the museum's exhibit includes an octagonal-shaped Pan-Pacific Exposition $50 gold piece, the first among a set of commemorative coins to bear the inscription, "In God We Trust."

"World's Fairs—From the Crystal Palace to Expo 67" opened to the public April 11, 1967. Hours are from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday. The exhibit will be shown for the next three months.

Medallic History of Flight Shown at Detroit Money Museum

Flight and space exploration are attracting visitors to a new exhibit at the Money Museum of National Bank of Detroit. Called "Medallic History of Flight," the display features medals and photos highlighting the stirring epic of man's conquest of the air and space.

Beginning with the historic flight of aerial pioneers Orville and Wilbur Wright, the display also includes such memorable personalities as Charles A. Lindbergh and Amelia Earhart.

Main emphasis of the attractive exhibit is the more recent explorations into space. Each major milestone in the quest for the moon is commemorated by medallion sculpture; the Soviet Sputnik I and United States Explorer I, world's first two satellites; cosmonaut

Yuri Gagarin and astronaut John Glenn, first two men to orbit the earth; and the "space walk" of Edward White. The Gemini program is also represented by John Young and Michael Collins, astronauts in the Gemini 10. Project Mercury is honored by medals picturing the original seven astronauts. Included in the display is one of the official NASA Project Mercury medals like those presented to members of the astronaut team and officials of government and industry associated with the

THE INTERNATIONAL SET HEADS FOR MIAMI BEACH

If advance reservations and inquiries mean anything, the 1967 ANA Convention in Miami Beach will have a definite international flavor, according to Sidney Smith, general chairman of the convention and Al and Helen Griswold, co-chairmen, committee on registrations.

In a recent report, Helen Griswold said, "it looks like we will have to move the United Nations staff of interpreters down to Miami this August. Inquiries are coming in from Germany, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, France, Spain and Italy. The firm of Muenzen und Medailen, Basle, Switzerland; Fred Jeffery, Wilts, England; the Calicos of Spain will present to the numismatic fraternity (and sorority) the fascinating dimensions of their backgrounds and treasures."

While every major dealer in the United States is expected to attend, the run-of-the-mill collectors from all parts of the country will also be coming . . . if only because they would normally choose Miami as the high point of their vacations. Over 2,000,000 people visit the Sunshine State in each of the summer months. About one-half of these people get to the Miami area. And think of the thousands (just on the statistical probabilities) of coin collectors who will make up this normal influx.

The dealer who attends these conventions is doing so out of enlightened self-interest. It is to his advantage to broaden his horizons . . . to develop new sources . . . and to see his business in the light of an ever-expanding interest . . . and to realize that numismatics is a dynamic and changing hobby. This is the reason for conventions. And this is the reason that most dealers attend.

When the sophisticated hobbyist is privileged to rub shoulders with the great and the learned . . . to discuss the fine points of a coin or medal . . . to find that his knowledge has increased and his abilities enlarged, then he should tell as many people as possible about his fascinating business.

The 1967 ANA Convention in Miami will have all these opportunities in full measure. Plan to attend. Get an article in the local newspaper about the convention. Tell the community that you are going, that you can better serve it. And remind your customers that if they ever planned to go to Florida, that the very best time to go is . . . August 8 through 12, 1967 at the Americana Hotel, Miami Beach, Florida.

Mercury program. The medal contains the busts of the seven astronauts and was made for NASA by the Medallic Art Company of New York.

To round out the exhibit, several other related items have been included which are mementoes of flight and space exploration. McDonnell Aircraft Company's 25th anniversary medallion and a twelve inch working model of a Gemini spacecraft add a distinctive flavor to the exciting display. In addition, three United States air decorations point out various awards for bravery during aerial flight; the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Air Medal, and the Berlin Airlift Medal. Allegorical medals alluding to man's struggle to attain flight are spread through the display.

The exhibit went on public display on April 15 and is expected to continue until December 1 of this year.

1956 Proof Sets Offered To ANA Conventioneers As Part of Promotion

The National Hobby Institute of Cape Coral, Florida will present a limited number of 1956 US gem proof sets to American Numismatic Association convention members.

This educational and research institution, endowed by Gulf American Corporation, will present the '56 proof sets as complimentary gifts to husbands and wives attending a special brunch or cocktail reception as a pre or post convention extra. This invitation is for adult couples only, due to the limited supply of these proof sets.

ANA conventioneers attending these receptions will also see an informative color film on Florida's living, vacation, and investment opportunities. Accommodations are limited, so it is recommended that reservations be made as early as possible. Receptions are scheduled for pre-convention on Monday and Tuesday, August 7 and 8 and post-convention on Sunday and Monday, August 13 and 14.

The convention public relations director for Gulf American, developers of Cape Coral, Golden Gate, River Ranch Acres and Remuda Ranch Grants, stated, "Gulf American is pleased to cooperate with the National Hobby Institute and American Numismatic Association in making this offer to coin collectors attending the convention, because it gives us an opportunity to supply information about our beautiful state as well as the many wonderful opportunities available here."

For reservation details, interested members should see page 792 of this issue or contact the Director of Convention Public Relations, Gulf American Corporation, 10th Floor, 7880 Biscayne Boulevard, Miami, Florida. Then, upon arrival in Miami, members should call 756-2929.

The National Hobby Institute, whose headquarters is located in Cape Coral on Florida's southwest coast, is dedicated to the pursuit of knowledge, research, and the development of programs concerned with the use of leisure time for creative activity.

Advisory board members of the National Hobby Institute include: Eva Adams, director, U. S. Mint; James S. Coleman, professor of Social Relations, Johns Hopkins University; Maj/Gen. Bruce Easley, USA retired, military consultant, Gulf American Corp.; L. L. Ferguson, manager, Behavioral Research Service, General Electric Company; Dale B. Harris, head, Department of Psychology, Columbia University; Matt Rothert, president, American Numismatic Association.

Two Writing Contests Open

In her latest progress report of the Young Numismatists of ANA Committee, Mrs. Hazel Lindstrom, co-chairman, announced that two writing contests are open to junior collectors.

For the Junior

Of the two special awards to offer, one of them is the Committee Literary Award, open to any junior member of ANA. Entries can be a published work or work prepared and presented before a group, coin club or church or social group. There is no minimum or maximum word count on the numismatic paper other than it must be the original work of the junior. Entries must be in the possession of Mrs. Lindstrom no later than June 30, 1967. Judges will be three members of the committee. Mrs. Lindstrom's address for submissions is, 710 West 26th Avenue, Pine Bluff, Arkansas 71601.

The next award is the Lewis M. Reagan Literary Award. This is for the more advanced junior writer, but does not exclude any ANA junior who wishes to participate. The judges will be writers and editors from all the major coin publications. Full rules have yet to be announced but watch, not only the next edition of The Numismatist, but the commercial numismatic publications, as well.

Awards for both contests will be announced and made at the national convention in August in Miami.

Mrs. Lindstrom notes in her April report that since last September approximately 200 juniors have been accepted for membership and that in the last issue of The Numismatist forty junior names were listed. If the present trend continues the 1000 application goal forecast by Clem Bailey of Numismatic News will be attained.

NUMISMATIC TERMS STANDARDIZATION COMMITTEE RESULTS TO BE PUBLISHED

A series of articles listing the defined numismatic terms as agreed upon by the majority of members of the Numismatic Terms Standardization Committee will commence to be published in the July issue of The Numismatist.

The fourth and fifth meetings of this committee were held simultaneously during the Metropolitan Numismatic Convention in New York City and the Central States Numismatic Society convention, the weekend of April 28-30.

During that weekend the following definitions were agreed upon.

Coin—Usually a piece of metal, marked with a device, issued by a governing authority and intended to be used as money.

Medal—Usually a piece of metal, marked with a design or inscription, made to honor a person, place or event; not intended to pass as money.

Token—Usually a piece of durable material appropriately marked and unofficially issued for monetary, advertising, services or other purposes.

Proof—Special technique of die plan-chet preparation resulting in a piece with maximum sharpness of detail and nearly flawless surface finish. A piece produced by such technique.

Many other words have been defined and a resume of definitions of numismatic terms will be published in The Numismatist on an installment basis.

The committee on Numismatic Terms Standardization is chaired by Arthur Sipe, ANA vice-president and members include: Harold Bavaird, Palisades, California; Emile Bourgey, Paris, France; F. X. Calico, Barcelona, Spain; Dr. V. Clain-Stefanelli, Smithsonian Institution; Mrs. Virginia Culver, John J. Ford, Jr.; S. W. Freeman, Lee F. Hewitt, Numismatic Scrapbook; and Henry Grunthal, American Numismatic Society.

Dr. Julian Blanchard ANA 12898

Dr. Julian Blanchard, well-known collector of paper money, died in New York City on Easter Sunday at age 81. Dr. Blanchard was born in Hertford, North Carolina in 1885. He graduated from Trinity College (now Duke University) in 1905. After receiving Masters and Ph.D. degrees from Columbia University, he did research work at the Eastman Kodak Company and later became Professor of Engineering at Trinity. In 1917 he entered the employ of the Bell Telephone Laboratories as an electrical engineer. During World War II he helped them develop various radar and other electronic devices. Prior to his retirement in 1950 he was engaged in writing patents for the laboratories.

Although he collected stamps in his childhood, he was not seriously interested until the 1930s. His introduction to numismatics came from his noticing the relation between stamps and paper money, both in the design and engraving processes. His interest in this subject was encouraged by the formation in 1943 of the Essay - Proof Society, concerned with the engraving aspects of both stamps and paper money. For a number of years Dr. Blanchard was president of the Essay - Proof Society.

Besides holding memberships in the ANA, the Essay - Proof Society and various stamp organizations, Dr. Blanchard was a member of the New York Numismatic Club and was on the board of the Society of Paper Money Collectors. He was recognized as an authority on paper money, especially in the field of obsolete currency. His exhibits, very attractively mounted, showing die proofs of vignettes matching those on his notes, won wide acclaim at ANA and other conventions. — GWW.

Col. James W. Hurlbut ANA 19306

Col. James W. Hurlbut, 57, collapsed in his car as he and his wife were returning to Washington, D. C., from a vacation in Florida. Hurlbut had spent most of his life in Chicago where he received his education, was a newspaper reporter and, after active duty in the Marine Corps during World War II, as a member of the Chicago NBC news staff. He had a wide following on radio and television, being best known for his "Zoo Parade" television feature which originated in Chicago's Lincoln Park zoo with its director, Marlin Perkins, appearing also.

His introduction to numismatics came in connection with the 1949 National Coin Week observance by the Chicago Coin Club, in which he helped it win third place in the nation. We were directed to Hurlbut at NBC as one "who can get you on television if anyone can do it." Although he confessed to having no knowledge of coin collecting, his "nose for news" suggested that maybe here was a story. The ANA plastic coin slides were new then and he used several of them to show coins on a 5-minute spot on the national network news program "Camel Caravan." This was, so far as one can determine, the first time that coins were shown on a national telecast related to the hobby. — GBS.

Dr. Jack Litman

Dr. Jack H. Litman, 51-year-old Akron, Ohio, dentist died recently after a short illness. Born in Pittsburgh, he had lived in Akron for 45 years.

An avid collector, he had won many "best of show" awards in city, state, regional and national coin shows. Dr. Litman was past president of the Akron Coin Club, the Penn-Ohio Coin Club and Collectors of Numismatic Errors — CONE.

Dr. Litman was a graduate of the University of Akron and the Ohio State University Dental College. A member of Jewish War Veterans, he was a captain in the Army Air Force in World War II.

Dr. Litman was best known in numismatic circles not only as an ardent numismatist, but for never letting an opportunity pass to help another collector.

Services were held at the Gordon Memorial Home and burial was in Rose Hill Cemetery. The family observed a memorial week at the residence and suggested that memorials be made to a favorite charity. The Akron Coin Club plans one in his name for the new ANA home in Colorado Springs. — RP.

E. J. Stoker
ANA 21141

Numismatics was very much a part of the life of E. J. Stoker and the ANA lost one of its most enthusiastic supporters last fall with his passing in Greensboro, N. C. As an organizing member of the Greensboro Coin Club and co-founder of the North Carolina Coin Clubs Association, Inc., he was particularly anxious that members and member-clubs have a true cultural and educational interest in their hobby and affiliation in the ANA. He had no patience with the recent "bag and roll" craze and sought to discourage it at every opportunity. — CS.

Roger R. Reed

The U. S. Mint lost one of its best-loved employees Friday, April 21. The sudden death of Roger R. Reed stunned and deeply saddened the hundreds of officials and employees throughout the government, with whom he had worked and whom he had capably served for more than three decades.

Reed entered the Mint in April 1942 as a bookkeeper following approximately six years' service to the Federal Works Agency. He rose steadily through the ranks of the accounting division and in January 1963 was named contract specialist for the entire Mint service, the position he held at the time of his death. He worked extensively with foreign governments and had complete responsibility for the execution of foreign coins. He also cooperated with commemorative organizations and societies throughout the country on the production of special medals authorized by Congress.

In July 1966, Roger was presented a Special Service Award for a cost reduction achievement which resulted in first-year savings to the Mint of $65,428.

Roger was born on December 28, 1905, in Unison, Virginia. He earned his Bachelor of Commercial Science Degree in 1936 from Southeastern University in Washington, D. C. He is survived by his wife, the former Nellie Louise Mills and by four sons — Richard H., Roger J., Timothy L. and Thomas Mills.

FEATURING FAKES

VIRGIL HANCOCK, A.N.A. No. 43616

© 1967 by Virgil Hancock

Mexico's meticulous Maximiliano's die-engravers were masters of fine detail, as their "20-pesos" gold (and "un peso" silver) coins attest. The genuine coins, that is!

Today's increased interest in Maximiliano brings increased activity by thieves who are stealing from collectors through the medium of counterfeit gold "Max 20-pesos."

Shown here are a genuine (1) Maximiliano gold 20-pesos, and two cast counterfeits (2 and 3).

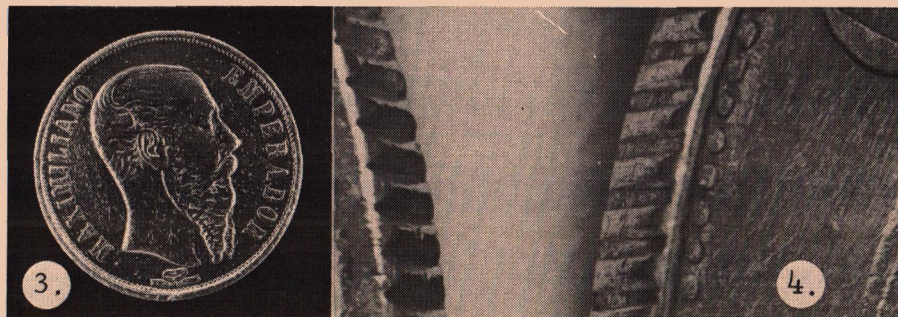

One counterfeit (3) was cast with a 1 mm oversize diameter rim. Then the coin was tumbled, to create innumerable surface digs and to make it look like a circulated coin. Next it was buffed to give the surfaces a high polish, further to conceal the cast texture. A 30-power microscope does disclose cast texture areas where the buffing wheel didn't reach.

Finally, the 1 mm oversize diameter then permitted an edge to be machined on the buffed counterfeit. The counterfeit's edge (to your left in Figure 4) thus not only is UNC. but is saw-toothed, whereas the genuine coin has a cog-wheel edge (to your right in Figure 4).

The other counterfeit (2) is a better, far more dangerous cast job, but still the microscope shows its cast surface, and its cog-wheel edge is shallow and blurred. The microscope shows the thief had overcut the edge reeding on his mold.

The meticulous Max would have deplored such sloppy work!

76th Anniversary Convention

The Speakers Four – Specialists All

The Educational Forum of the 76th Anniversary Convention of the American Numismatic Association will feature four speakers from as many activity fields. Subjects chosen are of real interest to today's numismatist. They range from gold coins of the Spanish Main to clad coins of 1967.

The speakers are specialists in their field and are (alphabetically): Ray Byrne, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Rupert L. Gates, Vero Beach, Fla.; Kenn Henderson, Ridgefield, N. J.; and Paul Whitnah, Little Rock, Ark.

One of the speakers, Paul Whitnah, is a sophomore at the University of Arkansas. He is a member of the Young Numismatists Committee of the ANA and says that he has been interested in numismatics for nine years – about half of his life to date. The title of his subject is "Youth Program, '67." For his outstanding activity on behalf of young collectors Whitnah was voted Collector of the Year by the Greater Little Rock Coin Club in 1963. He has been a columnist for the brochure, Coin Market Report, and now has a regular column in the Coin Collector which he calls, "A View From My Window."

Gates is an officer of Treasure Salvors, Inc., the organization which in recent years has discovered and salvaged many sunken treasures from the old Spanish Main. His subject is, "Spanish Colonial Gold Coinage to 1715." Gates is a graduate of Stanford University of Palo Alto, Calif. He is a U. S. Navy man and unmarried.

From Ridgefield, New Jersey, we have a specialist on nickel coinage and coinage systems of the world, Kenn Henderson. He will speak on "Getting Your Nickel's Worth." Henderson served on the USS Hornet in the South Pacific in World War II as a Navy photographer. He is active in local coin club affairs and is presently an officer in the Bergen County (N. J.) Coin Club, Bronx Coin Club, and New York Numismatic Club. He is a frequent contributor to numismatic journals.

Ray Byrne is a recognized authority on coins of the West Indies and Latin America. He will give a program called, "Nobles and Rogues of the Danish West Indies." Byrne is the author of many articles on New World coinage including Mints of the Americas, Coinage of Jamaica, Hispaniola Divided, Case of the Confusing Mint Marks and others. He is a long time member of ANA and currently serves on its board of governors. For the past several years Byrne has been an active collector and student of cut and counterstamped coins of the West Indies. His exhibits of this specialty are always a mecca of interest wherever shown.

FOR CONSPICUOUS GALLANTRY by Donald E. Cooke. 95 pages. Hardcover. C. S. Hammond and Co. $3.95.

For Conspicuous Gallantry is a collection of stories recounting the deeds of heroic individuals who won their country's highest decoration — the Medal of Honor. The book is well written, it begins with the history of the award and continues with selected accounts from various wars and campaigns. Cooke includes the several branches in his work.

The book concludes with the stories of two Medal of Honor awards that were revoked. Included is a listing of all the recipients by campaigns. The book has two fine color renditions on its jacket of the Army and Navy medal styles. It concludes with a glossary of military terms used in the book.

The author's selection of citations gives a well-rounded view of typical actions earning the medal in various wars. It is interesting for both the general reader and the serious student of the Medal of Honor. Available at better bookstores. — RUDOLF J. FRIEDERICH.

Believe It or Not!

FACTS & FICTIONS ABOUT COINS by Leon Lindheim. 280 pages. Illustrated. Hardcover. World Publishing Co. $6.50.

In the preface to this enjoyable book the author credits a chance reading of a copy of The Numismatist around 1950 with its introduction to numismatics. Incidentally, he became a member of ANA in 1951 and is now a life member. His interest in and reading about the subject led to writing a column, Coin-Wise, which has appeared in the Cleveland Plain Dealer since December, 1960.

His book, as the title indicates, is a collection of popular facts relative to coins. What the title does not disclose is that many of the book's brief stories deal with other numismatic items such as paper money, medals, tokens and decorations. The items vary in length but average about one page each, including illustrations used with over 100 of them. Not being an authority on the details of the varied topics covered, this reviewer can say only that he found them creditable. However, Lindheim may be challenged by a few specialists in certain fields, so I might as well start by calling attention to the fact that signatures, seals and numbers on US paper money are affixed in a third press operation, not second as stated on page 238.

All in all, this book of facts and fictions is well written and published, and probably will be referred to by many in making talks and writing articles. It includes an index for locating items by subject, and an extensive bibliography of numismatic books, periodicals and articles. Very legible type was used on a good grade of paper, and the durable binding and covers insure a book that will endure much use for a long time. At coin dealers and bookstores. — GLENN S.

BUST HALF DOLLAR MAJOR DIE VARIETIES by Pat Patton. 28 pages. Illustrated. Papercover. Published by author. $3.00.

In spite of the recent, intense interest in all coins of the United States, we are still not provided with a sufficient literature on the die varieties of all the series. Two exemplary works with excellent illustrations are those by Sheldon on the cents of 1793 to 1814 and by Bolender on the dollars of 1794 to 1803. In other series, however, much work remains to be done. The series of half dollars from 1794 to the weight reduction of 1837 constitutes what is perhaps the most varied, intriguing and attractive of all the United States series.

Our chief sources of information on this series are the rather large volume by Beistle (1929), who attempted the staggering task of describing all of the die varieties of half dollars down to that year, and the small but quite worthwhile supplement by Al Overton (1964). Overton's work is practically unillustrated and Beistle's work has only four plates illustrating bust half dollars, all but several of which are from the years 1794 to 1797. To gain an idea of the immensity and complexity of the bust half dollar series we need only consider the fact that Beistle catalogues 131 obverse dies for the period 1807 to 1823 and 197 for the period 1824 to 1839, not including the bust-right dies of 1807. These are simply the basically different obverse dies, to which must be added, of course, the many marriages with reverse dies and the many different die states caused by the tremendous pressures against the dies by the large planchets and the imperfect feeding of the planchets into the minting machinery. Moreover, a number of new varieties have been discovered since 1929.

Because of the paucity of illustrations of the half dollar die varieties in the standard literature, any addition to our meagre supply of illustrations must be welcomed by those who love this series. The modest-sized book by Mr. Patton has added considerably to our supply of readily available illustrations, but in evaluating this booklet we must be constantly aware of the proportions of the series described above. Perhaps a more fortunate selection of a title for the booklet would have been one involving the words selection or sample. The 55 illustrations of this booklet are typically about 7½ by 5 cm and are blown up to such a magnification of the originals that where dates are shown the numbers of the date extend nearly across the entire width of the illustration.

Notwithstanding some of the imperfections to which I have made reference above, I wish to point out that the illustrations alone in this booklet make it a valuable addition to our literature in this field. Hitherto much of the confusion in the field of bust half dollar varieties was simply due to a lack of illustrations. Let us hope that this booklet will prove to be an inspiration for further efforts that will provide us with really extensive illustrative materials for the bust half dollar series. —

CHARLES E. WEBER.

LATE WORLD IN NEWS

NEW ZEALAND

DC-Day, Acoming!

New Zealand changes to decimal currency on Monday, July 10, 1967—DC Day (Decimal Changeover Day). All plans are well advanced; some ahead of schedule. Responsible for the changeover is the Decimal Currency Board, of six members, set up under legislation.

Reasons for Change

New Zealand is to change to the decimal currency system because of its simplicity when compared with the complexity of the £ s.d. system; because time and effort in calculation will be saved in schools, shops and offices; and because greater accuracy will be achieved by many more people.

Decimal machines are easier to use and cheaper to make. A greater range of decimal office and calculating appliances will become available. Computer programs will be simplified.

About 98 per cent of the world's population uses decimal currency. When Australia changed on February 14, 1966, there was virtually no other market left for £ s.d. machines in this part of the world. When Britain changes, the demand for £ s.d. machines will disappear.

New Zealand System

New Zealand chose the pure decimal system based upon tens because it is easy to understand and standard throughout the world. A unit equal to 10s. was selected after much study because of the ease of transition possible through the "associability" of the units between existing and new currencies. This has already been proved an advantage in South Africa, Sierra Leone and Australia, which recently converted to decimals.

The NZ dollar will be divided into 100 units to be called cents, each worth 1·2d. The currency signs will be an S with a single vertical bar (|) for the dollar and a small c, with no decoration or stop, for the cent.

Coins

Coin denominations will be one, two, five, 10, 20 and 50 cents. The one-cent and two-cent coins will be bronze and the rest cupro-nickel. The one-cent and two-cent coins will be about one-fifth and two-fifths the weight of a penny. The five-cent, 10-cent and 20-cent pieces will correspond in size to the present sixpence, shilling and florin.

The 50-cent coin will be almost the size of a half-crown and will be the first piece of such large value to circulate freely in New Zealand (commemorative 5s. or crown size coins have been minted, but were never circulated). A coin of adequate purchasing power was desired; if a half-crown-sized unit were to be retained in the new currency as a 25-cent coin, the 50-cent piece would have had to be too big.

Withdrawal of half-crowns was begun on May 3, 1965, to make way for the 50-cent coin. Half-crowns will circulate for some time and will continue to be exchanged in business transactions at their face value. Once banked, however, half-crowns will not be reissued; effective withdrawal is now almost complete, although their being kept as souvenirs meant that little over half the issue was returned.

No half-cent will be issued and the halfpenny will circulate only as long as there is a need for it.

Banknotes

New banknotes are the responsibility of the Reserve Bank, the central banking authority, which is considering designs for the denominations decided on—one, two, five, 10, 20 and 100 dollars. The new notes will be smaller than the present series, and colours will be the same as for present equivalents. The five-dollar note (£2 10s.) is a new denomination.

All trading banks will operate in £ s.d. until a long weekend before DC Day. They will then close. During this period all their accounts, ledgers and machines will be converted to decimals. They will then open on DC Day fully operative in dollars and cents. All transactions with the banks will have to be made in the new currency.

Transitional Period

DC Day will be followed by a transitional period of up to 18 months, its length being determined largely by progress in machine conversion. During this time shops and businesses will be trading in either £ s.d. or decimals, depending on machine arrangements. It is expected that most will be able to accept either currency until the £ s.d. currency is finally withdrawn.

Planning and education are expected to prevent major problems arising and minor ones should be solved with little trouble, partly because of the compatibility of the two currencies.

Pounds are multiplied by two to achieve dollars; shillings are the equivalent of tens of cents; florins, 20 cents; and sixpence is equal to five cents. The one-cent and two-cent pieces on the one hand and the halfpenny, penny and threepenny on the other have no exact equals — but may be exchanged in lots of sixpence (equals 5c).

ISRAEL

Happy Birthday, Eilat

On the occasion of Israel's 19th Anniversary, the Bank of Israel has issued a crown-sized silver Independence Day commemorative coin. It has a face value of five Israeli pounds and, as its eight predecessors, is legal tender. This year's coin also commemorates the 10th anniversary of the opening of the Port of Eilat. The date of issue is May 15, Independence Day as reckoned by the Hebrew calendar.

The coin was minted in silver at the Dutch Royal Mint, Utrecht, in a limited issue of 8,000 proof and 31,000 uncirculated coins. It measures 34 mm in diameter, and its weight is 25 grams.

Eilat was chosen for recognition by the state on this year's coin since, in its ten years of operation, the port has become a vital trade route for Israel through the Red Sea. Three-thousand years ago, Eilat was the trading port of King Solomon but following his reign it remained in oblivion for twenty-five centuries until the establishment of Israel and its subsequent campaign to reestablish the port once again made Eilat an international waterway and Israel's gateway for trade with the Far East.

The obverse is dominated by the figure "5," the coin's denomination in pounds. The words, "Lirot Yisraeliot (Israel Pounds)," appear in Hebrew in the curve of the down stroke of the numeral. The words and numbers "Israel-1967" are carved into the down-stroke in Hebrew and in Arabic. The obverse was designed by Nathan Karp of Jerusalem.

The edge of the coin is inscribed "19th year of the State of Israel" in Hebrew. This is a departure from previous years.

The reverse is inscribed in Hebrew, "A decade of Eilat's port." The design which dominates the face is based on the Hebrew characters which spell Eilat. The letters have been stylized by designer "Roli" of Tel Aviv to become the buildings and the lighthouse of the town. An arabesque sea and the beam of the illuminated lighthouse square off the design.

DEDICATION MEDAL TO BE AVAILABLE

A one and one-half inch medal is being prepared by Medallic Art Company of New York and designed by Ralph Menconi to mark the dedication of the new home and headquarters of the American Numismatic Association in Colorado Springs on June 10. Ribbon cutting for the new facilities will be at 2 p.m. and among those officiating will be high ranking government and civic officials, including Miss Eva Adams, director of the Mint, and Congressman Frank Evans of Colorado. Taking part in the ceremonies will be the color guard of the North American Air Defense Command (NORAD) and the Fort Carson military band. Copies of the medal will be sold to those in attendance as a souvenir of this great event. Cost will be $2.00 for a bronze copy; $5.00 for a fine silver specimen. The latter will be a limited and numerically numbered issue. Mail orders will be accepted after the June 10th date on a first come, first served basis.

Headquarters Debut, Saturday, June 10

Saturday, June 10, is the historic day when the American Numismatic Association will dedicate its new home and headquarters in Colorado Springs. On this day numismatists and collectors from all over the country will gather for the dedicatory ceremonies that will mark a milestone in the 76 year history of the association, and start a new era in its growth and progress.

The first event at ten o'clock, Saturday morning will be a reception and coffee hour for ANA members, friends and guests at the new Antlers Plaza Hotel, hosted by its officers and officials. There will be no speeches but the entire time will be devoted to getting acquainted and visiting.

Following lunch the dedication will take place at two o'clock on the steps of the new building with seating being provided for everyone. An impressive hour-long program will mark the occasion with a band, prominent speakers and a meaningful ceremony. Then the doors of the building will be opened for inspection and an opportunity to meet the association's personnel.

In the evening everyone is invited to attend the banquet of the Southern Colorado Numismatic Association at the new Antlers Plaza Hotel, and enjoy the other activities of this convention and coin show.

A special dedication program and medal will be available to those in attendance as a memento of the occasion.

Meet the 36th Patron

The California State Numismatic Association boasts that the recent rapid growth of its Californiana collection is due primarily to the generosity of one of its members, Walter B. Keeney of Alhambra. His donations to that collection now amount to over $2500.00.

The American Numismatic Association is also fortunate to have Keeney as a member. He has donated to the building fund and furnishings drive, not once, not twice, but for a total of thirteen times and for a grand total of $2015.00 towards the ANA goal.

Who is Walt Keeney? According to Bryan Burke, curator of the Cal state collection, he is a person that you are not likely to recall quickly. He is quiet and observing rather than vocal and petulant. He's the one who is working, not the one that you hear speaking all the time. He doesn't ask for thanks so you will seldom see him on the platform taking bows.

Keeney was born in Chicago, but has been a Los Angeleno since he was very young. He has been an accountant, paymaster, postal worker and is now semi-retired. His interest in coin collecting was sparked when he acquired a Monroe Doctrine commemorative half-dollar. From this meager beginning he expanded until he had a complete set of uncirculated commens. His interest in paper money stems from when he received some currency in trade. His display of uncut sheets of bills at recent California conventions has been a focal point.

Walt Keeney is really one person who believes in "sharing" his numismatic hobby with others, because of him and hundreds of other collectors, the ANA home and headquarters is a reality.

A Time of Thanks and a Look at Future Goals

After 76 years of service to numismatists and collectors all over the country, our national numismatic organization will for the first time, have its own home and headquarters. On Saturday, June 10th, our association will realize this significant milestone when we gather in Colorado Springs to dedicate our new, debt-free facility. It is the hope of all of us that this fine achievement will place a firm foundation under our association and launch a new era in its growth and progress, and contribute extensively to the enjoyment of collecting and studying the money of mankind.

As an integral part of this big project, basic and far-reaching changes are being made in the association's organization and operations. Many part time and volunteer workers of the past are being replaced with full-time employees. For the first time scattered and uncoordinated operations are being consolidated in the new headquarters for greater efficiency. The whole framework of the organization is being overhauled and reconstructed in a fresh, new-set up. A revaluation of all programs, activities and services is underway. Naturally, these steps can not be accomplished at one time, and there will be problems and growing pains as the transition proceeds.

From the beginning this big project has caught the imagination and fancy of the numismatic fraternity and received its widespread help and support to become the product of the work, effort and contributions of countless collectors, coin clubs, numismatists, dealers, business firms and the ANA official family.

As chairman of your association's fund raising and planning and building committees, the writer, as a participant in this big project and change, has given considerable thought to the future goals of our grand organization. Where are we going and how will we get there? What are the really important things which we should be doing? What services, programs and activities should our organization push or drop?

Since numismatics and coin collecting means many things to many people, there is not always agreement or unanimity on the goals to be accomplished; but it is the writer's belief that the most urgent goals for the future advancement and enjoyment of numismatics and the growth and progress of our association are:

1. Double ANA's membership by a well-planned and executed membership campaign.
2. Add one and possibly two full time administrative employees to ANA's staff to help with the heavy work load.
3. As a service organization, the library, audio-visual, The Numismatist, National Coin Week, annual conventions, youth and club programs should be further improved and expanded.
4. The drive to raise funds for furnishing and equipping the new home and headquarters should be completed by dedication time.

As a member of the numismatic fraternity you have a stake in these goals. Add your ideas and then make all of them your goals for the betterment of a fine activity that has given you pleasure, friendships and knowledge. Sign up one or more new ANA members, lend a hand with your ideas and help to accomplish all goals, and see that contributions keep coming for the vital job of furnishing and equipping your Association's new facility. — CHARLES M. JOHNSON, CHAIRMAN OF FUND RAISING AND PLANNING AND BUILDING COMMITTEES.

National Coin Week Forum

This year's American Numismatic Association convention will feature for the first time a National Coin Week forum to be moderated by co-chairmen Rick and Virginia Bronson.

Slated as speakers at the forum are Ed Rochette, editor of The Numismatist and ANA public relations officer, and Virginia Culver of the ANA board of governors.

Rochette will speak on obtaining publicity for National Coin Week, explaining to attending numismatists what types of publicity have the best chance to be published and some methods which will assist members in writing and submitting publicity. In a recent letter Rochette stated, "I have an inkling on how clubs can get news coverage and publicity. I have served on both the receiving end (newspapers) and on the end that dishes it out (that was the year the Worcester County Numismatic Society won first for NCW)."

Mrs. Culver will address the group on special characteristics which National Coin Week exhibits should possess, explaining the differences between a normal show exhibit and a coin week display. She is well-qualified to speak in this area as current board liaison officer for National Coin Week and also having worked on the ANA exhibits committee, trying to develop improved judging standards for numismatic exhibits.

The Bronsons will report new ideas which were used by participating clubs and individuals in 1967. They will also report the progress of NCW this year, cite problems that developed, and introduce next year's chairman.

Also featured in the forum program will be a question and answer session where interested members may make inquiries and suggestions relative to NCW. The forum will be held immediately prior to the awards session on Friday morning, August 11. All individuals and club representatives interested in improving the coin week program are urged to attend and participate in this activity. This long needed forum will become a regular annual convention event with your participation and support.

Sgt. Rick & Virginia Bronson

The American Numismatic Association

The American Numismatic Association, an educational and nonprofit organization, is the largest and most active numismatic body in the world. It invites and welcomes to membership all worthy persons eleven years of age or over, who have a sincere interest in numismatics, whether they collect coins, paper money, tokens or medals, whether advanced collectors or only those generally interested in the subject without being collectors. The Association was founded in 1891, and has about 27,000 members from every state in the Union and many foreign countries. It was chartered for fifty years by Act of Congress May 9, 1912; renewed in perpetuity by Act of Congress April 10, 1962 and is a mutual organization for the benefit of its members.

All Association members, except Associate, receive the official publication, The Numismatist, without cost other than their annual dues. Membership applications should be accompanied by $11.00 to cover admittance fee and the first year's dues. Succeeding annual dues are $6.00. Nonmember subscriptions, $7.50 per year or three years for $20.00. Single copy 75¢. For application blanks or other information, write to Executive Director, P. O. Box 2366, Colorado Springs, Colo. 80901.

The Numismatist is an illustrated monthly which has been issued continuously since its founding in 1888, consists of 128 pages or more in each number with subscribers in about sixty countries. Advertising inquiries should be sent to the Advertising Manager. All other matters for possible publication in or concerning The Numismatist are to be forwarded to the Editor. Unsolicited manuscripts, which are sent at the owner's risk, and other correspondence calling for a reply must be accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelopes. Opinions expressed in articles published in The Numismatist are those of the authors and do not necessarily represent the views of the American Numismatic Association or the Editor.

Why Keep Coins in a Plastic Holder?

Obviously for the superb eye appeal they present, but more important to preserve your coins' value. A CAPITAL holder prevents fingerprints, scratches and will keep so called black "Carbon Spots" from destroying the coin. These spots may be formed by moisture from the mouth, a sneeze or just someone talking animatedly. The acidity present has its effects. May we suggest wiping the coins with a very soft chamois before placing them in a holder. A CAPITAL HOLDER OF COURSE!

20th CENTURY TYPE COINS HOLDER No. 460

Only 8 x 10 in size with spaces for 24 coins. (This includes the clad coins). Available in black, white, blue, green or red.

COIN COLLECTORS

We are selling the coins in this ad for a very worthy Boys Ranch. The proceeds will go towards a badly needed new dormitory. All coins are priced very reasonably and well worth the money.

San Francisco set of silver dollars complete 1878 to 1921 mounted in two attractive black plastic holders. 1886-S - 1889-S Unc., 1892-S, 1893-S, 1894-S XF, 1895-S Fine, 1896-S Fine, 1903-S, AU, 1904-S Unc. Balance all nice coins XF to Unc. except 1884-S. Very good value at 775.00

Beautiful 15 coin gold type set mounted in special white plastic board. Three $1.00, type 2 is 1855 XF. Two $2 ½, One $3.00 1854 XF, Two $5.00, Three $10.00 Liberty and both types Indian with and without motto. Four $20.00 Liberty and both types Saint Gaudens with and without motto plus the beautiful 1907 high relief Roman Numeral which is Unc. All coins not mentioned otherwise are XF to Unc. A very attractive and interesting set, well worth 1,700.00

An interesting commemorative set. Isabella quarter 1893, Lafayette dollar 1900, and the 1920 So Called Wilson dollar in silver. Issued at the opening of the Manila Mint. All uncirculated. Mounted in plastic display case, a bargain at 400.00

Carson City set of silver dollars complete 1878 to 1893. 1889CC shows slightest bit of wear as does the 1880CC. Balance all uncirculated and mounted in unusual custom made black plastic holder in a circular design 1,150.00

Peace Dollar set complete 1921 to 1935 all coins uncirculated, most are exceptionally nice picked coins. Mounted in two black plastic boards with the story of the Peace Dollar inscribed 595.00

THE KING OF MORGAN DOLLARS 1895 Proof

Although mint records show 12,000 regular coins made — I nor anyone I know has ever seen a genuine uncirculated or circulated coin. This leaves only the 880 proofs available and many of these have been damaged through the years, making the 1895 quite a rarity as well as being one of the most wanted dates desired by collectors.

Special price for the fine specimen we have available 4,300.00

RARE HAWAIIAN COINS AT DISCOUNT PRICES

Low mintage. Listed page 248 of the Red Book. Many melted, especially dollars of which over 400,000 were melted, according to the records at San Francisco. Many additional coins of each denomination were lost to the sea during a revolt by the people against the government in 1893. Few were left. In fact — during my visit to Hawaii I searched the Islands to locate Hawaiian coins and discovered to my amazement that few people living on the Islands even knew that these coins existed. Most inhabitants were amazed when I showed them coins struck by the U. S. Mint for circulation in Hawaii. They are not only no longer in circulation, but few Hawaiians realize that at one time they had their own coinage. Check your Red Book — Excellent investment potential per dollar invested.

With great pride, we announce the issuance of an outstanding artistic work of medallic art. No photograph or reproductive technique can capture the richness and simplicity of this beautiful medallion. The "Four Assassinated Presidents" medal is one of the finest artistic works offered by Presidential Art Medals. This striking historical masterpiece must be seen to be appreciated. It is unusual to find four full view delicately detailed portraits in sculptured high relief on a single large medal. The obverse portrays an exceptional likeness of Lincoln, Kennedy, Garfield and McKinley with their signatures incised below the portraits. The reverse depicts the flag of the United States and the Presidential flag with the following inscription in relief: "PRESIDENTS OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA WHO GAVE THEIR LIVES IN DEVOTIONAL SERVICE TO THIS NATION." Dates of each President and the Presidential Seal is in raised relief.

The FOUR ASSASSINATED PRESIDENTS MEDAL is issued as follows:

1,000 pieces serially numbered from 1-1000 Silver (.999+) 2 3/4" dia.	$39.50 ea.
Unnumbered pieces Antique Bronze 2 3/4" dia.	$ 5.00 ea.
Descriptive pamphlet and metal desk stand with each medal

PLEASE NOTE: Due to an extremely limited issue of Silver medals, orders are accepted contingent to prior sale. Special plastic holders with gold lettering are available at $4.00 each.

UNCIRCULATED U. S. SILVER DOLLARS FROM COEN-MESSER CO. WHERE QUALITY COUNTS

The wide disparity in prices being offered by the many dealers in the various publications is still puzzling. So many of the dates that are being offered are unavailable when asked for by the customer, or if available the "QUALITY" is so obviously over-rated that one must return the coin. The regular PROFESSIONAL COIN DEALER knows that Real "FROSTY" UNCIRCULATED Coins are quite difficult to obtain and the owner usually wants a high price for choice coins.

Within the past few months we have noticed that there has been a very active increase in the price of bags of silver dollars with speculators paying higher prices for bags of uncirculated dollars. These buyers are aware that BU Silver Dollars have tremendous appeal for future appreciation because of its silver content and its numismatic value. The WISE Collector will buy his Select Coins at this time before prices skyrocket out of range. The U.S. Silver Dollar in Uncirculated Condition is still the LEAST EXPENSIVE COIN in the ENTIRE WORLD, considering its date and number of times over face it sells for.

Our AVERAGE BU is a coin that has the usual bag marks and where the (*) is indicated, the coin may be weak struck, or not fully brilliant.

Our SELECT BU coin is generally well struck with a minimum of some bag marks and each specimen is fully FROSTY and natural luster.

Our DUAL-RANGE of pricing offers collectors an opportunity of selecting the price range he can afford. All our coins are fully guaranteed to please and of course a full refund is made if you do not want the coin. EACH COIN is worth the price... TRY US FOR OUR FAST SERVICE AND GOOD VALUES...!

Dictionary and Auction Catalogues of the Library of the AMERICAN NUMISMATIC SOCIETY, New York City

In the Dictionary Catalogue, hundreds of periodical articles and pamphlets are analyzed by subject with the same detail as the books. Every significant numismatic periodical from 1930 on is analyzed, as well as many prior to that year. The catalog also contains references to articles appearing in non-numismatic periodicals. Special items include cards for microfilm copies of books difficult to obtain in original form.

The Auction Catalogue is divided into two sections: American and foreign. It is arranged by dealer, with entries chronologically under each dealer, and contains additional entries for collector or collections when known.

At Edelman's, you can obtain quick confidential loans for any amount up to 80% of the value of your properties — from $50 to $50,000 and more. Take as long as 30 months to pay with a repayment plan tailored to your specific needs. Your collection will be safely protected in Edelman's air-conditioned vaults until you reclaim it. MODERN FOREIGN COINS

Are you having a hard time keeping up with the new issues? So are we! Many are difficult to get in quantity, and sell out too fast for comfort, but normally sooner or later all new items come our way.

On July 1 my new semi-annual stock list of minor foreign will be ready, along with a new monthly list of short-stock and more recent items. If you are interested in minor foreign, you will enjoy this and ultimately look forward to it each time it is released. If you are not interested, no use reading further!

In addition to these retail lists, there will also be a new wholesale list (the last one was 18 pp) which is available to dealers who write on their letterhead. No charge for these lists — what can you lose?
